DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's election with traverse of Group I, claims 1-13 drawn to composition comprising ibuprofen and diphenhydramine in Paper No. 6 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the Groups I and II could be examined with a single search because any reference describing treatment of pain-associated sleep disturbance with a composition comprising ibuprofen and diphenhydramine would also describe the composition comprising ibuprofen and diphenhydramine itself. Additionally, Group I and III are classified in the same class 514 and are closely related and would be easy to search together which would not impose a serious burden to examine them together. This is not found persuasive because the claims are drawn to the inventions that are distinct and independent from each other because the product as claimed in Group I can be used in a materially different process of using that product since the product can be used to treat allergic and inflammatory conditions. Moreover, the different inventions (Groups II and Group III) have different effects. Further, the inventions are classified in different classification would place burden on the examiner. Therefore, the restriction requirement made on the last Office Action is deemed proper and made FINAL.

Accordingly, claims 14-25 are withdrawn from consideration.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 and 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Sunshine et al. (U.S. Patent No. 4,522,826).

Sunshine et al. teach a pharmaceutical composition comprising 50mg-400mg ibuprofen and from about 12.5-50 mg diphenhydramine elicits an enhanced analgesic and/or anti-inflammatory response. (abstract, column 6, lines 44-45, column 7, lines 1-4, column 14, claim 39). Sunshine et al. teach the above composition can be formulated in tablet form or two or more layered tablets. (column 8, lines 4-10).

Applicants' recitation in claims 1 and 2 of an intended does not represent a patentable limitation and it would be inherent property of the prior art composition since it is same composition formulated with same amounts as claimed by the Applicants and such fails to impart any physical limitation to the composition.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 4-6 and 10-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sunshine et al. (U.S. Patent No. 4522826).

Sunshine et al. applied as before and further teachings as follows:

Sunshine et al. teach that diphenhydramine is commercially available as the hydrochloride salt. (column 1, lines 60-65). Sunshine et al. also teach that polyethylene glycol is an acceptable carrier to the above composition. (column 7, lines 31-35).

Sunshine et al. do not explicitly teach the specified form set forth in claim 9 and specified capsule as being a soft gelatin capsule and bilayer formulation being a caplet.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Sunshine composition to employ hydrochloride salt form of diphenhydramine because Sunshine et al. teach that diphenhydramine is commercially available as the hydrochloride salt form. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to employ commercially available hydrochloride salt form of diphenhydramine to conveniently formulate Sunshine composition to achieve enhanced analgesic and/or anti-inflammatory response of the subject disclosed by Sunshine et al..

The pharmaceutical forms, e.g., caplets, gelatin capsules, etc; salts of active agents are all deemed obvious since they are all within the knowledge of the skilled pharmacologist and represent conventional formulations.

For these reasons the claimed subject matter is deemed to fail to patentably distinguish over the state of the art as represented by the cited references. The claims are therefore properly rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103.

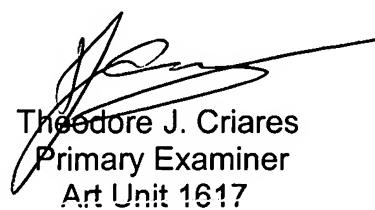

None of the claims are allowed.
